

December, 2011

Hello! Like every year some of us have gathered at Asia Plateau to be with ourselves and look within to see what lies ahead in the days to come. The long hours of silence mean a lot to many of us and in these hours of silence one discovers the real nature of 'I'.

The time after the youth conference 2011 till present time has been eventful and together with the team we have been able to travel to Baramati, Jamshedpur, Ranchi, Raipur, Nagpur, Pune, Mumbai, Delhi and Bhavnagar to speak to the youth of our country at different platforms on what Mra-lofC stands for, and we the young people are responsible for the generation next and sensitize them the importance of values and its relevance in present time. The word value holds phenomenal significance in present time as many of the things we hear and see pertaining to the country, corporate, academics and leadership around us makes me think what kind of society has been created and where our civilization is heading. Every hour, every day and every moment we the young people of this country need to think and sacrifice our personal agenda, selfish interest, laziness and work towards creating a society and civilization which will believe in creating the foundation of their family and society based on uncompromising values where the words like dishonesty and corruption sound as if they never existed. In this short journey of our for the last six months we have made a conscious attempt to sensitize the youth at various forum and challenge them to stand up to the ethical values and subscribe to no short cut and where word like ego has to be crucified because road to success is long and can be achieved only through perseverance.

Personally I am deeply indebted to Navendu for taking a sabbatical break for six months and all that is been achieved in last six months was only possible because of his dedication and commitment towards the LMAD work, his unflinching attitude towards the work made it possible to launch youth website www.lmad.in and also the face book page. He travelled extensively to make possible the outreach of our work, with his and team's help we were able to speak to more than six thousand students in different parts of the country. One man commitment can bring so much value and acceleration to youth work. I want to encourage many more young people to remove time from their career or professional life or at the end of their academics to work for this movement which will add value to that individual, the LMAD movement, the society and the country at large. Think on these lines in your quiet moments and if the inner calling is in tune with what I have written then I am with you.

We have already started planning and working towards the coming youth conference from 1 to 8 June. I have also enclosed the details please share the same with many others and inspire them with your good being and change. If the youth team and I can be of any help which will add value towards the YC 12 then do share with us. In our planning meeting we have decided to have an ethical person as our chief guest for the inauguration on 1 June. We also need two more speakers who will connect with the young people and will be able to understand and guide the young mind. There is also an opportunity for a light musical evening or a play performance for an hour. If you can help with your suggestion and also have a link or contact of the suggested person then it will become easy and quick to move ahead.

Reading your own written letter will definitely take your mind to Asia Plateau and the LMAD conference. It will also throw light on what you have written and the commitment which you had given to yourself will question you where you stand after seven months. If there is a sense of achievement and if you have progressed there will be overall peace and confidence that I can do it, but if this letter is a reminder to what you had decided then wake up, you can still do it. I wish you good luck and a year where peace and happiness last.
